

The MCN website was rebuilt using Joomla! (formerly known as Mambo), a yet powerful cms (content management system) that is developed by a global, non-profit collaboration of programmers, designers, and enthusiasts and available for free. This cms was named best open source solution of the year at 2005 Linuxworld in San Francisco, beating out Firefox and IBM. It uses php server side language and a mySQL database. Content is editable via a browser-based publishing system. More about the open source philosophy.
